

The Dog and the Sow

Aesop'S Fables

Greek

Advanced
1 min read

A Dog and a Sow were arguing and each claimed that its own young ones were finer than those of any other animal. “Well,” said the Sow at last, “mine can see, at any rate, when they come into the world: but yours are born blind.”

Read more fairy tales on Fairytales.com