

The Moon and Her Mother

Aesop's Fables

Greek

Intermediate
20 secs read

The moon once asked her mother to make her a little cloak that would fit her well. “How,” replied she, “can I make you a cloak to fit you, who are now a new moon, and then a full moon, and then again neither one nor the other?”

Read more fairy tales on Fairytalez.com